FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION, MILTON B. HOPKINS, Of Clinton County.

No Pariyism. The Republican papers say that an effort is making to build up the National Intelligencer, long the old Whig organ at the National Capital. Accompanying the announcement is the significant statement that "it is to be Republican in politics." This is an additional illustration of Republican no partyism.

Reorganization of the Republican Party.

The Albany Journal, the representative of Mr. SEWARD in New York, in an article advocating the reorganization of the Republican party, gives the following as one of the reasons for that policy: "But parties will exist after the war; and so will the issues which, before the war, separated the Republican from the Democratic party." It is in favor of the Republicans now maintaining the distinctive issues which they have heretofore advocated and upon which they succeeded in obtaining the control of the Government. Another Republican organ, the New York World, more clearly defines the considerations which should determine the Republicans to adhere to their party organization for the purpose of maintaining and continuing their party ascendency. It says:

The Republican politicians who take the most active interest in this prospective movement are well known friends of Secretary Seward, and it may fairly be inferred that the efforts in this direction are inspired by him. His friends form a jority of the present Republican party in New York; but if the policy pursued last fall should be repeated, and the next election be carried by the aid of Union Democrats, it is probable that the friends of Mr. Seward would find themselves in a minority in a party thus reinforced. As the Republicans are strong enough to carry the State without such aid, there are powerful obvious reasons why Mr. Seward's friends should insist on the maintenance of a strict party organization.

This foreshadows the policy which will be pursued by the Republican leaders. There will be no fusion with the elements antagonistic to Re publicanism in any of the States where the Republicans are strong enough to carry them without such aid. This will be the extent of the nopartvism of the Republicans. In this State, the Republican leaders will make the next political battle upon strict party issues, if they have a reasonable confidence of success. With such a prospect they will not ask the aid or seek an affiliation with "Union Democrats." This is just the extent of their very patriotic propositions of no party during the war. They didn't want any outside aid at the recent election in New Hampshire; they didn't want any in New York; nor will they want it in any State where they can go it alone. An unconditional Union party with them means nothing less than the unconditional triumph of Republican principles, Republican policy and Republicans. They will unfurl the black banner wherever they are strong enough, and nobody should be deceived by hypocritical professions to the contrary.

The Democracy the True Union

The Louisville Democrat pays the following compliment to the unswerving devotion of the Democracy of the North to the Union, to constitutional liberty, and the principles they have ever advocated as necessary to maintain the one and perpetuate the other:

In the free States, the term Union party will not do. The Abolitionists claim to be that party. Wendell Phillips, Horace Greeley & Co. are now for Union; not the Union, but a Union; not the Union or the Constitution as it has been, but a Union revised, changed and improved upon the Abolition theory—a Union without slavery. Kentucky can have no affiliation with these men. Her friends in the North cannot rally under a standard that carries the black flag.

Now, look to the present Congress, and say who we can unite with. Every man sent there by the Democrats of the North has voted steadily and spoken steadily against every radical proposition brought forward. They have been restive under the exercise of questionable powers even when adapted to put down the rebellion. Their speakers and their press have uniformly denounced Abolitionism and all its schemes. We accord to a number elected as Republicans the credit for statesmanship, in resisting the disunion efforts of the Abolitionists of the North. We give the President credit, anti-slavery as he is in his abstract opinions, for his resolution in adhering to the Constitution and resisting the radical pressure upon him; but we can not overlook the party North against which no charge of sectionalism can be brought: whose hands are unstained by the guilt of provoking this rebellion; who constantly remonstrated against the current of their action, and warned the people of the evil that sectional organization would produce. They stand by their colors; although foremost in putting down this rebellion, the South can not charge them with this sectional agitation. The South can not charge them with an unfriendly act. They are long tried friends, who have stood faithful in every storm, and have not deserted us or the Union. In short, they stand just where the Union party of of Kentucky stands. Look at every vote in Congress and you will find all the Democrats of the North along with the loyal men of Kentucky uniformly and certainly. They are a powerful party in the free States. They fell into a minority owing to the faithless conduct of the Southern Democrats by name, and the equally ill conduct of the other party in the Souta. They adhered to the name they have never disgraced, and to national principles they have never abandoned; and way should not our Union party be with them? What party in the North, omitting these, can Keatucky unite with to save the Union and her interest in it? The only danger to them and us is, that their hostility to the name Republican may repel from them the aid of men who really agree with them.

We don't care a fig for names; but we can't forget the merit of those who, in the free States, rally under the name Democrat. They are the friends of Kentucky. They stand by her now in Congress. When the North turns up right, as we don't doubt it will in the next Congressional elections, we shall owe to the Democrats of that region four fifths of the power; and we higgle on the name! How absurd!

The Report of the Shoddy Investigating Committee.

In point of interest and amusement it seems the rival Van Wyck's celebrated dissection of confiding Cummings of the World. Thurlow Weed and Mayor Opydyke appear to figure prommently among the shouldy crew, and they are not in company which does them credit, whether they be guilty or innocent. The purchases for the State seem to have been made in just the loose, careless, unthrifty way that Cummings bought the army ale, porter and herrings. The ladies figure in the report, and silk dresses were offered as commissions by the shoddy contractors in the stead of Morgan's two and a half per cent. Altogether this report needs a little ventilation, and we shall give it shortly. Shoddy is a very queer thing, and it acts very queerly upon those who dabble with it. "Devil's dust" is a very approprinte name for the gold dust which shoddy contractors and their tools have made out of those shoddy transactions .- N. Y. Herald.

// The Duty of Conservatives.

The conservative elements of the country, we said the other day, must unite with Democrats in the great work of reuniting in peace and harmony the people of this whole land. The larger part of the conservative men, outside of the Democratic organization, occupy a position something like this: They have never acted with the Democratic party; their early education prejudiced their minds against it, and the conflicts of later years have confirmed the impressions of earlier days. And yet to day it would be a difficult task to rationally account for these feelings. The issues of the past are settled, and settled to the satisfaction of the country. To whom the credit is due impartial history will award the praise, and no feelings or wishes of the present can change the result.
